

East End Community

Cincinnati's East End neighborhood stretches seven miles along the banks of the beautiful Ohio River. It is bounded by the Little Miami River to the east and the downtown Sawyer Point Park to the west. Columbia Parkway is the northern border for most of the neighborhood and of course, the Ohio River is the southern border. Its location puts it within convenient reach of many of Cincinnati and Northern Kentucky's neighborhoods including Downtown Cincinnati, which is only 3 miles and 10 minutes away. Other notable bordering neighborhoods include Mt Adams, Walnut Hills, Oakley, Hyde Park, Mt. Lookout and Columbia Tusculum in Ohio and Covington and Newport in Kentucky. Because of its strategic location, the East End has easy access to major thoroughways like the scenic Columbia Parkway, I-71 and I-75 and I-275. It is rich in modes of transportation that encompasses not only including planes, trains, and automobiles, but buses and bikes!

Cincinnati's East End neighborhood is diverse and changing in several ways: decreasing in absolute population and shifting in racial composition. The 2010 Census estimates our population at just over 1,500 people. The population density is less than Downtown and the neighborhoods to the north. The median age was 38.4 years with the largest concentration of residents in the 35-64 years of age category. Assuming these residents continue to reside in the East End, they are a basis for an aging East End population. The East End is predominately composed of white residents (86%) followed by African-American (11%) with the balance made up of other races. The percent of Caucasian residents has increased slightly while the African-American population slightly declined. A number of residents are descendants of early Appalachian settlers and retain its independent, spirited culture.

The East End has a wide range of economic incomes. There are a significant number of residents living in poverty (21%) and on the other end, a number of residents with incomes above $100,000 with a declining middle class. The largest segment of the population is middle class and the median income is just over $40,000, which is just a few thousand higher on average than Downtown. The East End does not have the highest educational attainment rates within Cincinnati—especially when compared to the more affluent neighborhoods directly to the north. However, in 2000, between 16 and 20% had graduated with at least a Bachelor's degree the majority of residents over age 25 had graduated high school. The East End is blessed with a K-12 school, Riverview East Academy, that educates students from our neighborhood and surrounding areas with a focus on health careers.

While East End is home to a variety of ethnic and socioeconomic groups, we almost all have one thing in common and that is a love for the Ohio River. Many of our residents have sweeping views of the Ohio River and the rest are only a short walk or drive away. It is what attracts many people to make the East End their home and it is certainly the reason many stay over multiple generations. Our proximity to the river, nature-rich hillsides and many gardens so close to the urban Cincinnati core is the reason the East End has been described as "oneness with nature in the heart of the city".

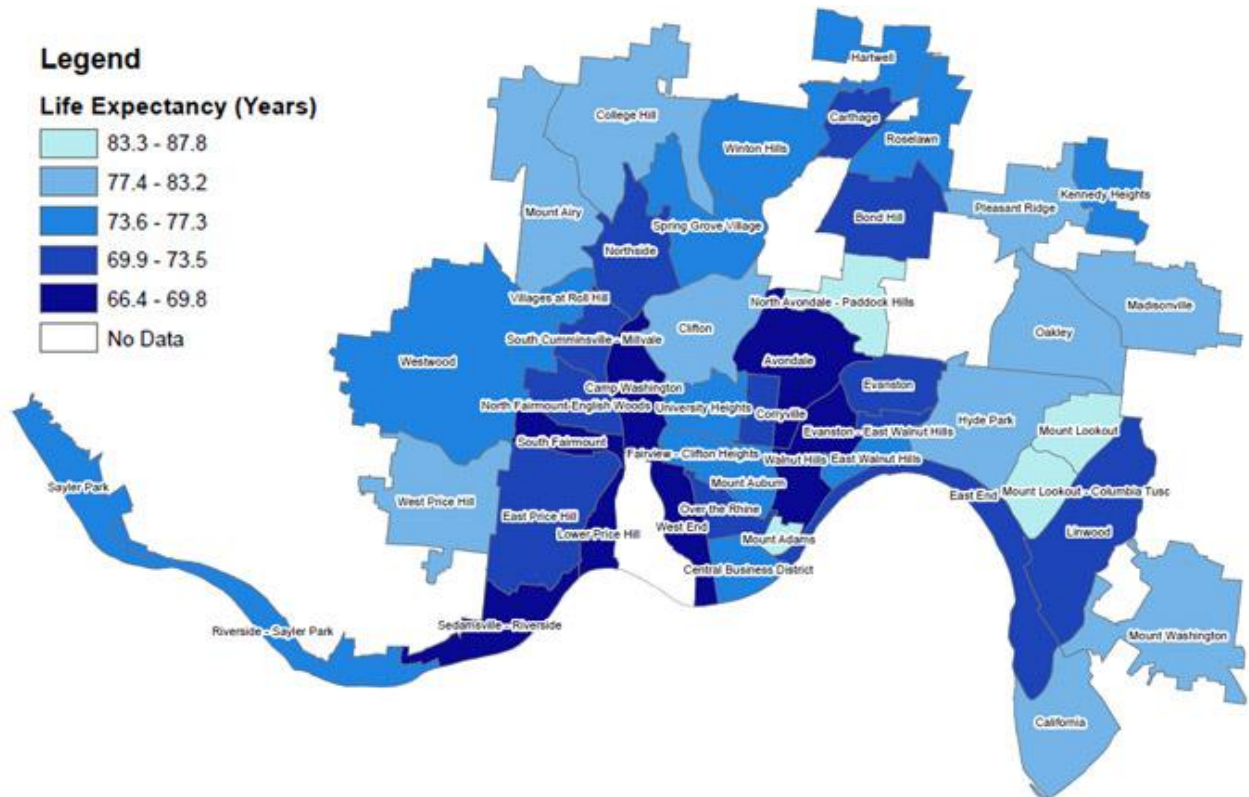

The East End has a much to offer those seeking a healthful lifestyle. The surrounding nature is good for distressing and the many recreation amenities good for our physical health for those willing to utilize them. We have the Ohio River itself and the Little Miami River, which is good for canoeing and kayaking. There are bike lanes all along Riverside Dr., which continue on to connect with the Lunken Airport bike path that will soon connect to the Little Miami Bike Path. Then one could bike from the East End to Cleveland on a continuous bike path! There are dozens of soccer and baseball fields, plus sand volleyball courts and playgrounds. We have the luxury of hosting some of Cincinnati's best parks including Friendship Park, Schmidt Field/Boat Launch, LeBlond Rec Plex, and Lunken Playfield. Oh, we shouldn't forget the driving ranges, golf course and tennis courts. And if the weather absolutely sends you indoors or just because it is a fun place to be, there is LeBlond recreation center.

The East End has much to be proud of and we are blessed with a good community of kind-hearted people who love living here. We are growing with external recognition of our many attractions and businesses and new residents are finding their way to the East End. We are excited about the future of the East End and are so appreciative that the Health Clinic is available to help our students and residents stay healthy to enjoy all these good things about East End living.
